Demographia World Urban Areas: Population Projections: 2007 & 2020 (World Agglomerations)

INTRODUCTORY NOTES

Urban Areas

An urban area (urbanized area, agglomeration or urban centre) is a continuously built-up (developed) landmass of urban development. An urban area might be thought of as the “human footprint” that can be seen outlined by the lights of urbanization from an airplane at night.

National census authorities in Australia, Canada, France, India, the United Kingdom and the United States designate urban areas. Except in Australia, the authorities use a minimum urban density definition of 400 persons per square kilometer (or the nearly identical 1,000 per square mile in the United States). The threshold in Australia is 200 persons per square kilometer.

Notes on Modeled and Projected Population Figures

The basis of the population projections are the following annual rates:

Canada: Metropolitan area (corresponding to urban area) rate: 2001-2005

China: Regional urban rate: 2005-2015

China-Hong Kong: United Nations rate 2003-2015.

China-Taiwan: Total population projection rate: 2005-2015

France: National regional rate: 1999-2004

Malaysia: National urban rate: 2005-2015

Netherlands (Rotterdam): Zuid Holland rate: 2000-2006

United States: Metropolitan area (corresponding to urban area) rate: 2000-2005

Viet Nam: National urban growth rate: 2005-2015

Yemen (Sana): Metropolitan area rate: 1994-2004.

All others: Growth projection rates for corresponding urban agglomerations: UN 2003-2015

Combined Urban Areas

NATION	COMBINED URBAN AREA (Population & Land Area Code "H")
Canada	Toronto: Toronto, Hamilton, Oshawa
United States	Boston: Boston, Worcester, Nashua (NH)
United States	Chicago, Kenosha (WI), Round Lake
United States	Dallas-Fort Worth: Dallas Fort Worth, Denton
